Opportunity blooms here.

If you've been to Antioch lately, you know our city is flourishing. Construction equipment, new roads, a BART station, young families, grand openings—evidence of rapid growth and change is everywhere.

Take a deeper look and you'll find more good news. The future of healthcare isn't in Oakland or South San Francisco: it's right here in Antioch.

Sutter Delta Medical Center, recognized for the quality of their compassionate care, employs 750 East Contra Costa County residents, welcomes 500 babies every year at the Birth Center and helps 54,000 patients annually in their Emergency Department. Kaiser Permanente, one of America's leading healthcare providers, is another local success story. With 2720 local employees, they've served East Contra Costa County since 1954 and now provide services through three facilities, including the Antioch Medical Center.

These two leading healthcare organizations call Antioch home because of our skilled talent, affordable land, business-friendly attitude, central location for almost 320,000 people and all the opportunities we offer to live the highest quality of life.

They say, "Opportunity knocks." But in Antioch it doesn't have to—it already lives here.
